Online Summit Topics

Math, Science, and Gateways to STEM
October 23rd, 2018
The challenge of providing strong early STEM experiences, controversies over high school math tracking, and the ongoing challenge of implementing new science standards.

Next Generation Assessment
February 19th, 2019
In this virtual event, Education Week journalists and guests will staff online "discussion" rooms on a host of topics, including group work, the move to competency-based learning, and new efforts to abolish letter grades.

Personalized Learning
December 16th, 2018
Low-tech personalized learning strategies, how to train teachers for a radical change, and 5 big mistakes education companies are making in trying to serve schools' personalized learning needs.

SEL & Student-Centered Learning
March 20th, 2019
Developing a child’s social and emotional skills is as important as building his or her academic skills, but who is most responsible for doing this? There’s an emerging recognition that unless schools and educators take responsibility for developing the so-called "soft skills".

Literacy for the Future Workforce
April 14th, 2019
In this virtual event, Education Week journalists and guests will staff online "discussion" rooms on a host of topics, including literacy, ELA, writing, and workforce preparedness.

ESSA: A Guide to District Implementation
April 30th, 2019
Using state ESSA plans as a jumping off point, Education Week journalists and expert guests will answer questions and guide online discussion in specialized booths focusing on how the law’s implementation affects schools & districts.

Ed-Tech Leaders & Innovation
June 5th, 2019
Education Week offers you an opportunity to probe and better understand the challenges facing ed-tech leaders and innovators.

For More Information:
Reach out to marketing@epe.org